Classic Old Fashioned

Developed during the 19th century and given its name in the 1880s. This potent concoction of spirits, bitters, water, and sugar is perfect for any occasion.

Espresso Martini

With several claims for the origin of the Espresso Martini, one of the more common is that it was created in the late 1980s at Freds Club in London for a young lady who asked for something that would, "Wake me up, and then fk me up." This ticked all the boxes.

Margarita

Related to a popular Mexican drink, the Daisy (margarita is Spanish for "daisy"), remade with tequila instead of brandy. It became popular during Prohibition as people drifted over the border for alcohol.

Aperol Spritz

The Italian aperitif Aperol was created in Padua in 1919 by the Barbieri brothers. The original recipe has supposedly remained unchanged over time but it wasn't until the 1950s that Aperol Spritz became a popular alternative to the usual Venetian mix of white wine and soda.

Negroni

While the drink's origins are unknown, the most widely reported account is that it was first mixed in Florence, Italy, in 1919. Count Camillo Negroni concocted it by asking to strengthen his favourite cocktail, the Americano by adding gin rather than the normal soda water.

Mojito

Havana is the birthplace of this drink. It was known that the local South American Indians used this as a remedy for tropical illnesses and has since been presented as a favourite drink of author Ernest Hemingway.

Cosmopolitan

*While the cocktail is widely perceived to be a more modern creation, there is a strikingly similar recipe for a cosmopolitan which appears in Pioneers of Mixing at Elite Bars 1903-1933, published in 1934. Made with ingredients that would have been readily available during the period, this identically named cocktail aims for the same effect.*

Moscow Mule

*According to a 1942 Insider Hollywood article, the Moscow mule was most popular in Los Angeles, where it originated. In 2007 a new version of the invention of the Moscow mule cocktail was published. In this story the cocktail's inventor was Morgan's head bartender and the drink was born out of a need to clear the bar's cellar, packed with unsold inventory, including vodka and ginger beer.*

Whiskey Sour

*The oldest historical mention of a whiskey sour was published in the Wisconsin newspaper, Waukesha Plain Dealer, in 1870 and has stayed a strong top 20 cocktail since. We make ours with Aquafaba instead of egg whites making this a vegans perfect version.*
